ISSUE

The Robert H. Smith School of Business proposes to change the name of its Master of Science in "Business and Management" to "Management Studies". The new title will align the program with industry expectations for such a degree, and the program will be more easily marketable to prospective students. Many peer and aspirational schools, including schools in our geographic area, have named similar programs Master of Science in Management Studies. These universities include Georgetown University, George Washington University, Pennsylvania State University, New York University, Boston College, Duke University, and George Mason University.

This name change will also apply to the online version of the program.

The proposal was approved by the Graduate School PCC committee on September 29, 2022, and the Senate Programs, Curricula, and Courses committee on October 7, 2022.

RECOMMENDATION(S)

The Senate Committee on Programs, Curricula, and Courses recommends that the Senate approve this name change.

COMMITTEE WORK

The committee considered this proposal at its meeting on October 7, 2022. Rellie Rozin and Mike Marcellino, from the Robert H. Smith School of Business, presented the proposal and answered questions from the committee. The committee approved the proposal.

ALTERNATIVES

The Senate could decline to approve this new program title.

RISKS

If the Senate declines to approve this program title change, the current program will continue to lose prospective students to similar programs at peer and aspirational universities, whose programs have a more recognizable name.

FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS

There are no significant financial implications for program title changes.

Proposal Summary

The Master of Science in Business and Management (MSBM) degree at the Robert H Smith School of Business would like to apply for a name change of the program to be Master of Science in Management Studies (MiM). We do not propose any curriculum change or any change to the structure of the program. This is merely an application for name change to make the program name more in line with how other peer and aspirational schools name such programs and therefore also more in line with industry expectations for graduates of such program.

Program Modification Information

Impact on current students. It should be specifically acknowledged that students enrolled in the program prior to the effective date of any curriculum change may complete their program under the old requirements if they wish. The courses required must remain available, or suitable substitutions specifically designated.

The proposed update provides no new impact to the current status of the MSBM degree. Per above, there is no impact to curriculum and it is merely a relabeling of the program name.

Linked Programs

Renaming Program

Provide a rationale for renaming the program.

The Master of Science in Business and Management (MSBM) degree program in the Robert H Smith School of Business was designed to provide a foundation of business knowledge to students who have completed their undergraduate degree in a non-business related field but who largely do not yet have work experience. It is an intensive, full-time program targeted at undergraduate juniors and seniors who would like more exposure to tools and concepts in business-related subjects that will supplement their undergraduate major. It provides significantly greater depth (30 graduate credits) than is available from the business minor (15 undergraduate credits).

This proposal seeks to change the name of the MSBM degree to a Master of Science in Management Studies (MiM) degree. Our intention is to align the name of the program with how a similar program is named in peer and aspirational schools, making it also more aligned with industry expectations for such degree, and making the program more easily marketable to prospective students.

Many peer and aspirational schools, including schools in our geographic area, have named similar programs Master of Science in Management Studies, including for example: Georgetown University, George Washington University, Pennsylvania State University, New York University, Boston College, Duke University, George Mason University. We have also received feedback from our admission and Marketing and Communication office that changing the name to Master of Science in Management Studies (MiM) would be extremely beneficial in terms of more easily marketing the program and helping potential candidates better understand what this program entails and its market value.
